Subject: Proposed settlement

To whom it may concern:

It is my strong feeling that this proposed settlement makes a travesty of the very notion of anti-trust law. It completely ignores the evidentiary foundation of the case and does absolutely nothing to impede Microsoft's continued stifling of innovation in the software industry.

There's nothing more to say; this proposed settlement should be laughed out of court as the travesty of justice that it represents. It responds to the finding that Microsoft is both a monopoly and has seriously abused its monopoly status with meaningless "remedies" that do nothing to alter the fundamental practices by which Microsoft makes a laughingstock of the notion of "free markets".

Sincerely,
Harry A. Huff
